

PUBLIC DISCLOSURE RULES FOR EXEMPT ORGANIZATIONS

The Internal Revenue Code and Treasury Regulations require a tax-exempt organization to make a copy of its last three years' annual returns (Forms 990 and 990-T) and its application for exemption available for inspection. The following is a summary of the public disclosure rules. Please contact us if you need any further detail.

What information must be disclosed. Exempt organizations must make available for inspection the following forms: Form 1023, Application for Recognition of Exemption, along with the corresponding IRS determination letter; Form 990 and accompanying Schedules (but see later sentence regarding Schedule B); and, if the organization is designated as a 501(c)(3) charity, Form 990-T. Form 990-T is required to be disclosed only by 501(c)(3) organizations. Forms 990 and 990-T need not be made available indefinitely. The public disclosure rules apply only to annual returns that have been filed in the past three years. Also note that most exempt organizations are not required to make a list of names and addresses of individual contributors available for public inspection. As such, Schedule B is not required to be disclosed. For your convenience, and in order to maintain the privacy of your donors, we have enclosed a public disclosure copy of your Form 990 (and, if applicable, 990-T) that does not contain Schedule B. We recommend you use this public disclosure copy to meet the public disclosure requirements.

How the documents must be disclosed. The required forms must be made available for inspection at the organization's principal office during normal business hours. The organization must also keep a copy available for inspection at other offices it has, but only if those other offices have three or more employees. The organization cannot charge an individual for merely inspecting the documents at the organization's office. However, see below regarding permissible charges for copying the documents.

If the organization opts not to make the documents available on the Internet, then the organization needs to respond to requests for copies of the documents in the manner described below. If the documents are made available publicly via posting on the World Wide Web, then the organization does not need to otherwise copy and distribute the documents.

In-person requests for copies of the documents at the organization's offices must be honored on the day of the request. An exception exists if that places an unreasonable burden on the organization (for example, the request is made right before the office closes, or staff is busy with a special event). The organization must provide the copies the next day it is able to reasonably do so, but never more than five days after the request.

Requests for copies submitted in writing via mail, e-mail, fax, etc., must be honored within 30 days of receipt. If the organization requires prepayment of costs, then the deadline is extended to 30 days after payment is received. If the organization requires prepayment, the organization must notify the requestor of the need for prepayment within seven days of receipt of the request.

Reimbursement of Reasonable Costs for Providing Copies. An exempt organization may charge reasonable costs for copying the documents. However, these charges may not exceed an amount set by the IRS. Currently, this amount is 20 cents per page. The organization may charge any actual postage costs incurred in addition to the copying charge.

Penalties for noncompliance. The penalty for noncompliance is $20 per day of noncompliance. If the noncompliance is found to be willful, the penalty is $5,000.

Harassment Campaigns. An organization is not required to fulfill a request for a copy of its exemption application or annual return if the request is part of a harassment campaign. Feel free to contact us if you have any questions.
